10:20	SAP update and news from Sapphire  With the mass adoption of cloud, big data and mobile technologies over the last 20 years, SAP's customers are generating an overwhelming volume of data. But most of them are unable to leverage this data effectively. As data becomes the new "oil", most companies are simply building up larger reserves without a clear path for how to cash in this new asset. To make sense of all the noise, draw meaningful insights from their data, and dynamically allocate resources, SAP's customers must become intelligent enterprises.	Maggie Buggie Global Head of SAP Leonardo Services
